Coastwalk has made a commitment to supporting the next generation of coastal stewards. We are proud to have initiated a summer event specifically for youth leaders involved in environmental causes - the CoastTrek 4 Youth. We partnered with youth groups from Ocean Revolution (from the Blue Ocean Institute), Adventure Crew, and Summerfield Waldorf School to create a fun and educational two-day event. We hope that this pilot program will be duplicated throughout the state to involve more youth in protecting the California coastline and in helping to complete the Coastal Trail. The Coastwalk staff worked hard to put together this event. Special thanks to Coastwalk board member Katie Seward who showed amazing leadership abilities in coordinating this event.

We’re Building a Movement

Dear Coastwalk: We lived in the San Jose area for eight years and … moved back to Colorado... However, home is where the heart is and, as the years go by, our longing to go home increases...When we return, we want to see a state as beautiful and accessible as when we left. We’re not wealthy enough to buy our own dream on the coast and, even if we were, we would always allow the people access to THEIR LAND. We’re thankful for organizations like yours and we wish you success in...

Maree Fink Award to Bob Cowell

We are happy to announce Bob Cowell as the 2005 recipient of Coastwalk’s Maree Fink Award.

Bob has served on the Coastwalk board since 1994; he organized and led the Lost Coast Backpack for several years and in 1996 hiked from Oregon to the Mexican border. The Coastwalk family has always appreciated his calm demeanor and quiet enthusiasm as he promoted our goals of coastal protection and access and completion of the CCT. Thank you, Bob, for your efforts on behalf of the coast.

The Fink award was created to recognize Maree, an early behind-the-scenes volunteer who tirelessly promoted Coastwalk. She completed a summer Coastwalk every year from 1983 to 1994, and was the first to walk in all 15 coastal counties. The award recognizes our incredible volunteers who do as Maree did: work behind the scenes for the good of the coast and the organization, expecting nothing in return beyond our thanks and appreciation.
Coastwalk Is...

THE COASTWALK MISSION:
Coastwalk believes that through stewardship of the California coast, people can find a balance between their profound need to experience the coast and the need to preserve its fragile environment. We are a grassroots non-profit organization that inspires, educates and advocates for both coastal protection and access. We create a community of stewards through our unique coastal hiking experiences and our work to complete and sustain the California Coastal Trail.

your endeavor to protect access to what belongs to all Californians... What a great, beautiful state you have. Please do what you can to protect it from those few who are too greedy to share it. -Walt Heidenfelder, Lakewood, CO

In everything Coastwalk does, we keep our eyes on the big prize – guaranteed statewide coastal access for all. All our activities - advocacy for completion of the California Coastal Trail, involvement in large-scale efforts like revitalizing the Los Angeles Harbor area and smaller ones like restoring state park trails, our summer Coastwalks and year-round day-hikes – are fueled by this grand vision.

Although the goal is sweeping, the struggle to preserve coastal access is made up of many small efforts. The citizens who educate themselves, attend planning meetings and study local plans are the true grass roots of the access movement. Coastwalk was founded by activists like these, and we believe that our most important work is empowering people to defend their local stretch of coast. For example:

Dear (Coastwalk Director) Richard Nichols: Last evening we met with a group of Carlsbad homeowners and Ponto Beach lovers that have formed the Ponto Action Committee to influence the Ponto Beachfront Vision Plan through legal and political means. We have decided to join them in their effort. We shared with them your CCT book and the section about the coastal wetlands of Southern California. They were very impressed. They would like to paraphrase that section in their educational materials to try to educate and motivate others to join in this effort... (We) will also be contacting State Parks, Fish and Game, local state legislators, the media, the city council, and others to try to influence the decision on the Ponto plan... Thanks for your inspiration. - Shelley and Greg

When these Carlsbad locals wanted to save their last piece of open coastal land from massive development, they contacted Coastwalk. Director Richard Nichols spent time advising them, and they came away with ideas and contacts, inspired and hopeful about the possibility of saving their coast.

A large part of what we do is behind-the-scenes, seemingly small work like this. We have advised and collaborated with many individuals and groups up and down the state who have become impassioned to save a beloved stretch of sand from development or privatization.

The coastal movement needs everyone who loves the beach – not only those who are actively defending a local stretch of coast - to join in. We are only as strong as people want us to be. If you have not yet become a Coastwalk member, we urge you to join us now, with the membership form on the back of this newsletter, or online at www.coastwalk.org. If you are already a member, we invite you to make a tax-deductible contribution today, in the name of coastal access. Call our Development Director Sasha Rose Schaible at 800-550-6854 to discuss a bequest or other long-term options.

Let’s save Ponto Beach. Let’s revitalize the Los Angeles/Long Beach Harbor coastal communities. Let’s enjoy the once-“private” beaches in Malibu and all the stretches of coastline that are being preserved by land trusts, statewide agencies and local citizen groups, every month. Join us.

that for me would be extremely daunting: after climbing some 40 feet up an old fir and clipping their climbing harness onto a cable stretching down the hillside, the kids, one by one, took the step that sent them hurtling through the air. Not your average Coastwalk activity!

Katie Seward, Coastwalk board member, long time Del Norte County Coastwalk volunteer, and a recent high school graduate, served as on-site leader and coordinator for the walk. Camping sites around the main building at Ocean Song were chosen, and Coastwalk member Pamela Noel served dinner with the Pacific Ocean in the distant background.

The next morning looked a little bit more like the standard Coastwalk we are all used to: sleepy people wandered in the fog (both external and internal), made their breakfast at the chuck wagon and broke camp. By 8 a.m. they were gone, on their way to Fort Ross where they met up with Rob Helms, Coastwalk’s Trail Steward and hike leader for the day, who talked to them about his work on the California Coastal Trail.

Those of us who have walked the 7 miles from Fort Ross to Russian Gulch along Sonoma County’s “Lost Coast” know that it is a challenge. Beach rocks patiently await the unsuspecting hiker, each rock looking serenely benign but in reality silently eager to twist an ankle. This particular walk was made a little more challenging by a higher than desirable tide. Along the way the beach wasscoured for trash: 8 full bags were gathered and hauled out. At Mermaid Pool there was a stop for a swim; probably the first time Coastwalkers have swum there since Brenda Nichols’ plunge in the 1980’s!

By 5 p.m this two-day adventure was over, and some tired, inspired and happy kids were on their way home.
